Takes the user to the page for clarifying their availability after inputting a code and pressing enter

Takes the user to the login page when clicked

Takes the user to the home page if the user is not logged in. Takes the user to their calendar page if logged in.

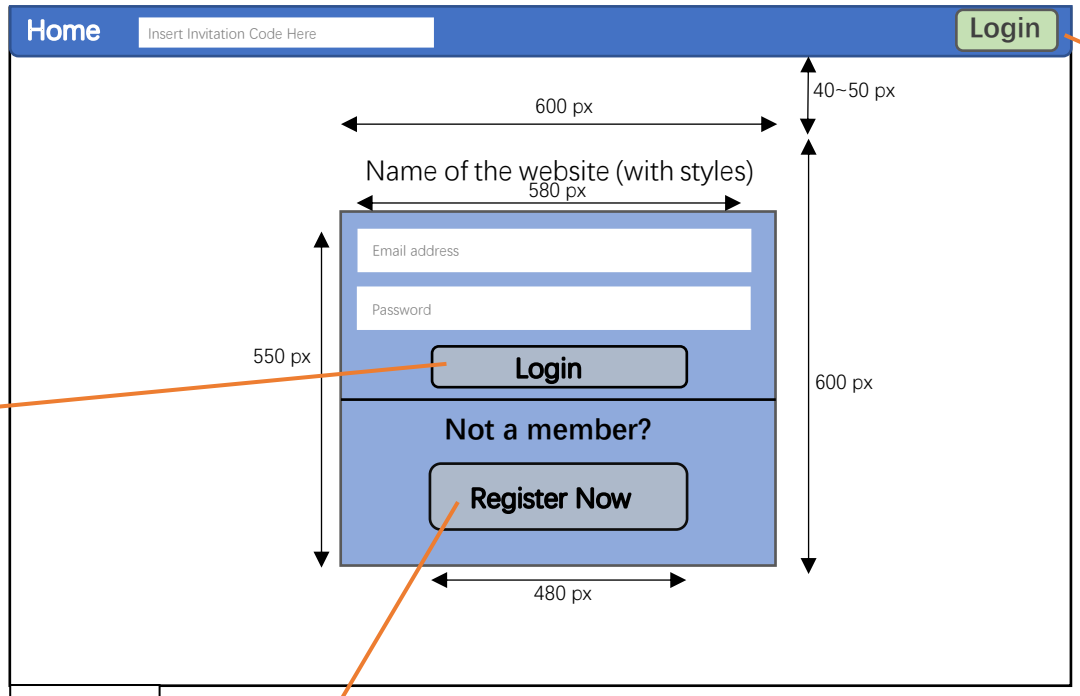
Border-radius: 8px
Applied to the button border only

The size depends on how large the description div becomes after adding description (minimum 8000 px)

Takes the user to the register page when clicked

Takes the user to the login page when clicked

Home page



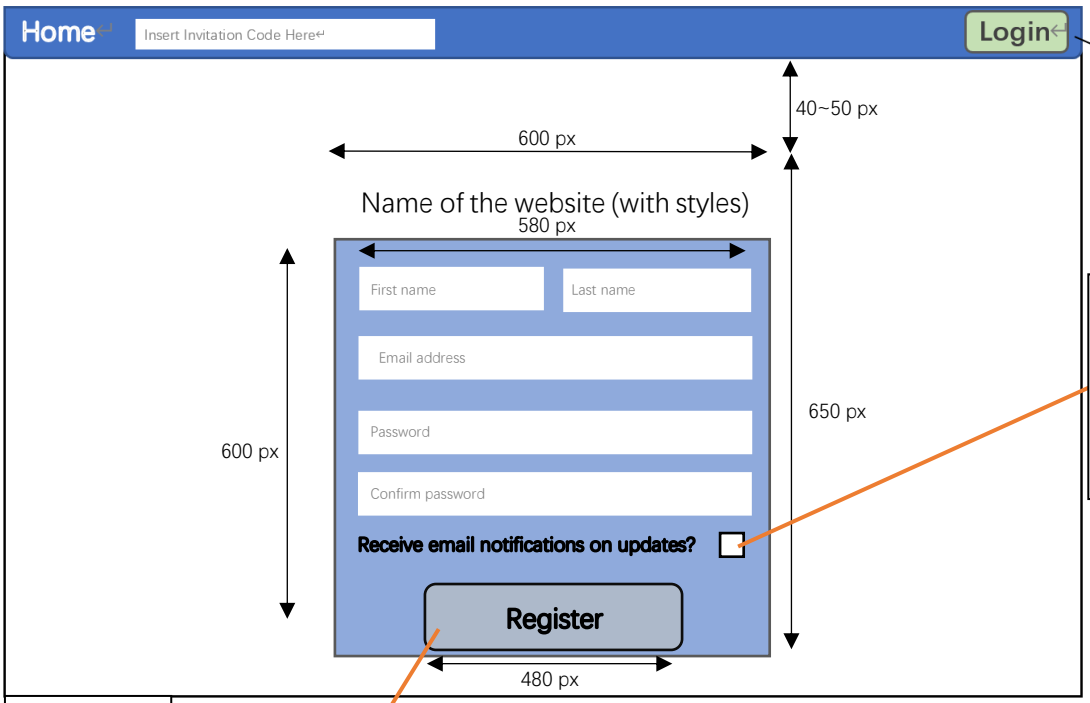
The header functions the same as the one in the main page

Check if there exist user with the input password and email address, if the user exists in the system then logs the user in.

Login page

Takes the user to the register page when clicked

The user will be redirected to their calendar after logged in



The header functions the same as the one in the main page

A tick box for the user to clarify if they want to receive email notifications

The user will be redirected to the login page after registered.

Register page

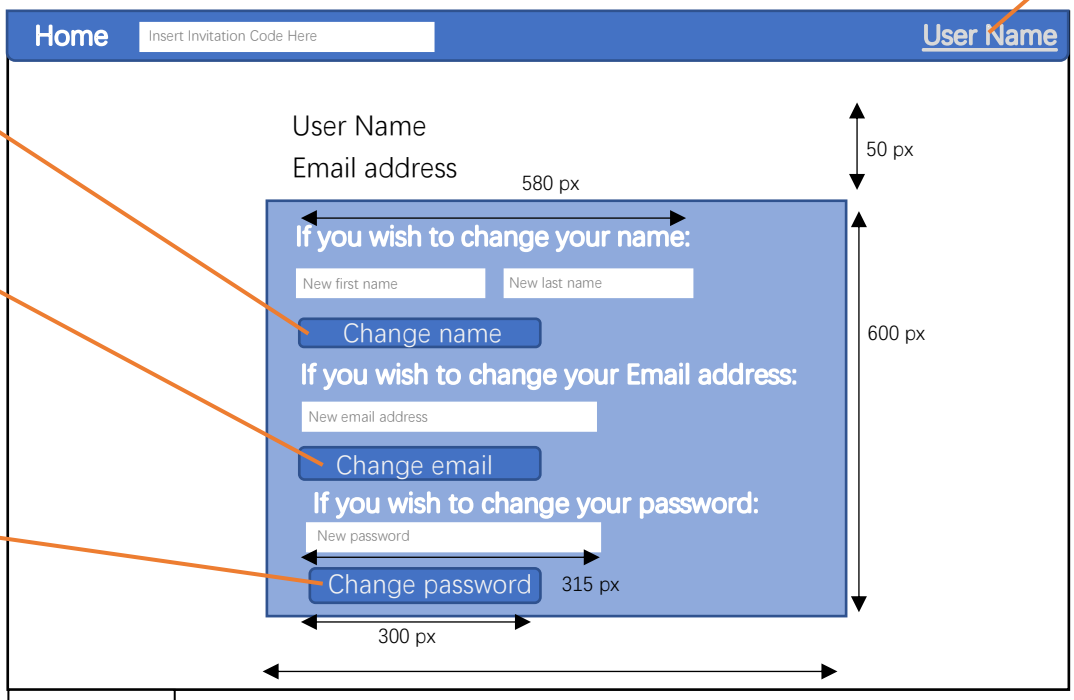
Registers the user with given information on the input boxes

Takes the user to their profile page

Changes the name of the user to the one in the input boxes

Changes the email of the user to the email in the input

Changes the password of the user to the one in the input box



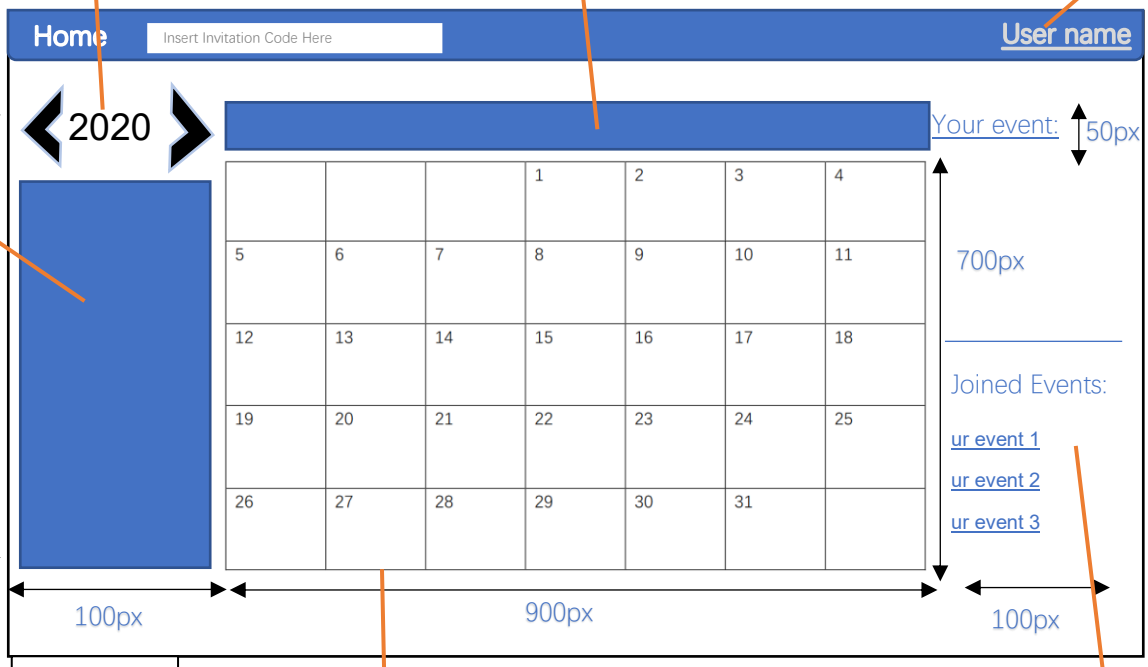
User profile

Display the current year, the current year can be changed by clicking on the two arrows on the left and right and side of the year

Display the months, the current months can be changed on click

Takes the user to their profile page

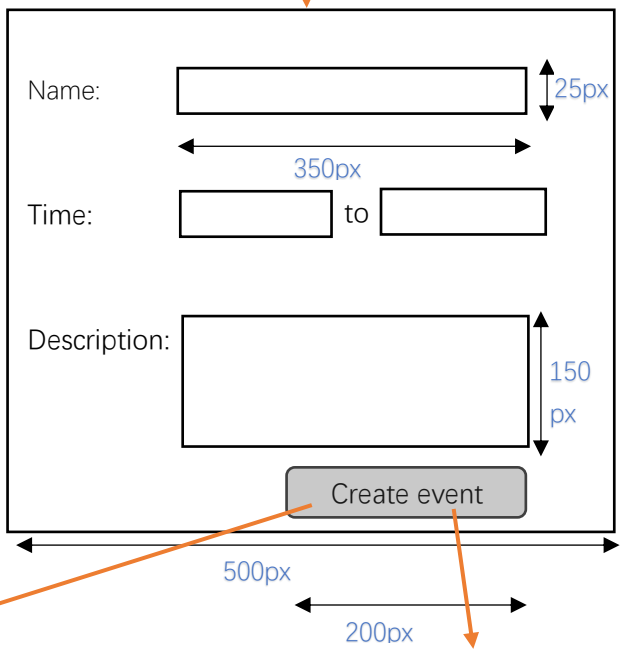
Spaces for additional functions/ utilities



Calendar

Onclick

Display the created events and the joined events of the user



v

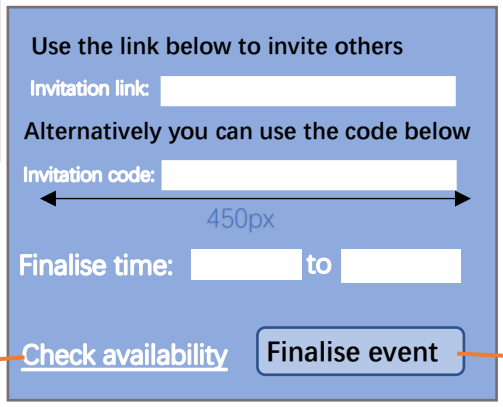
Creates an event, then calendar will update with a new event on day of the event as shown on the left.

Event name
Event status

After created the event, a popup will show up contains the invitation link. Clicking on the event name will also show this popup

Event status will display whether the event is finalised or not

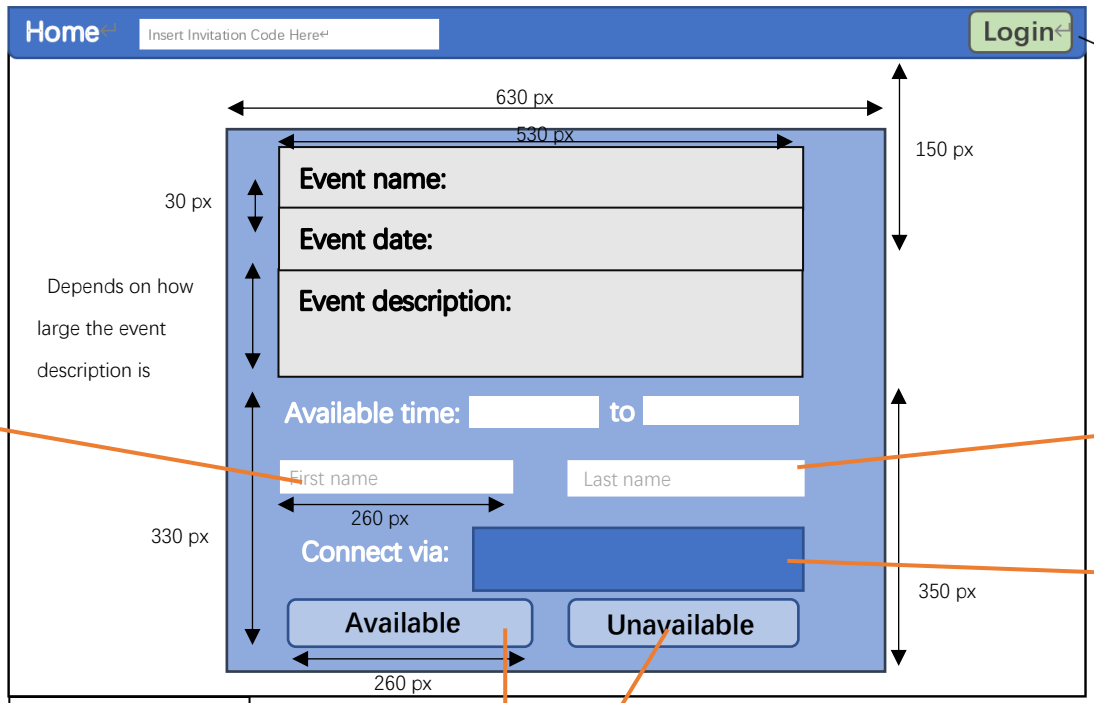
500px



The user will be directed to the availability page after clicking on the link

Opens a new tab for the user, containing a table of the people who stated their availability for the event. (basically, fetch the availability database for this event)

Finalises the event with the inputted time, the user who has an account would receive email notification if they turned it on.



The header functions the same as the one in the main page

Will not show up for users who have logged in.

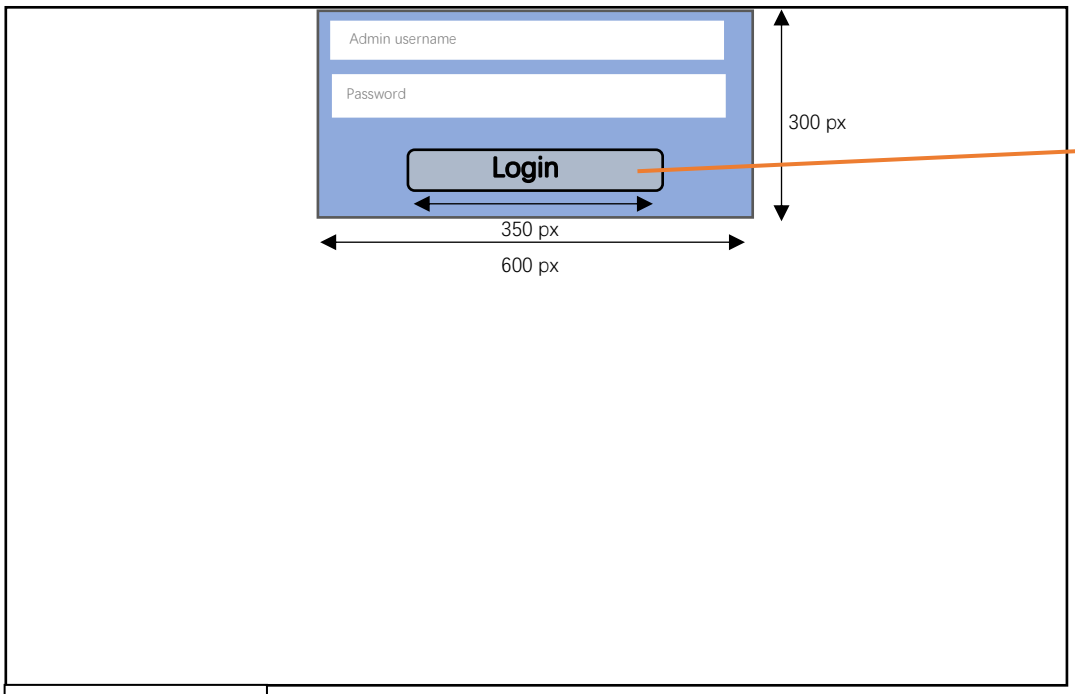
Will not show up for users who have logged in.

This is for connecting api to clarify availablity of the user for this event

Availability page

Onclick with an input different to the place holder in the input boxes, the user will clarify their availablity for a particular event. Records the availiable time and name for the users that doesn't have an account

Admin stuff:



Redirects to the admin main page after a successful login

Admin login page

Redirects to the Admin profile page

Redirects to the Admin management page

Redirects to the Admin sign-up page

Change your user information

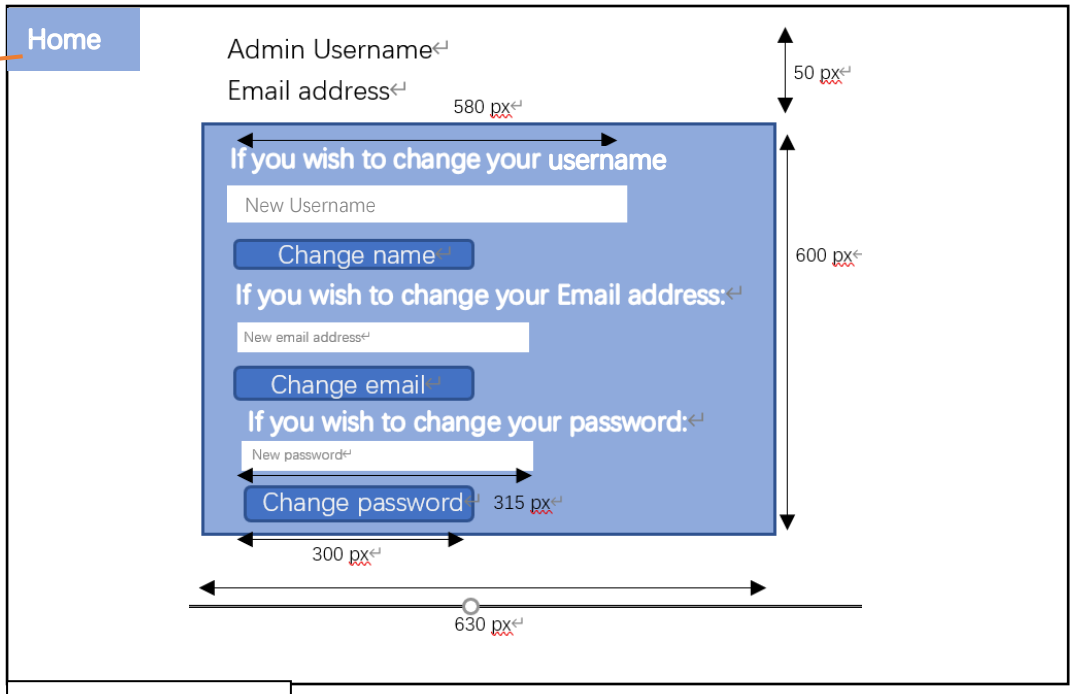
Manage users

Manage events

Signup other admins

Admin main page

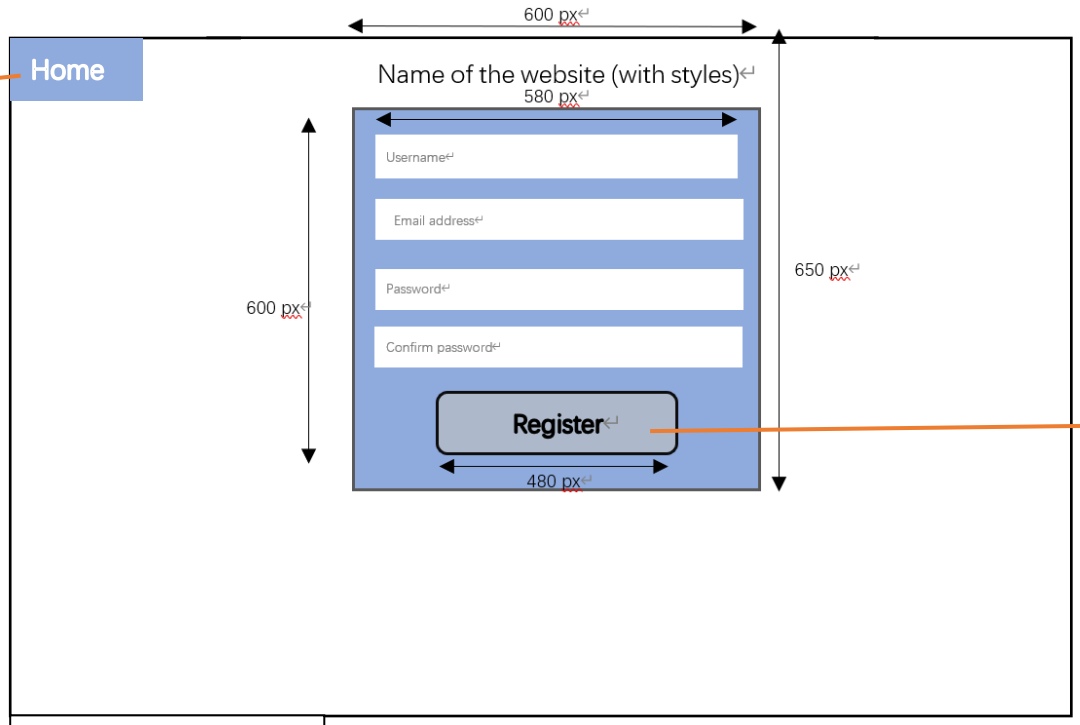
Takes the admin back to the Admin main page.



Admin profile page

The components in this page for username, email address and password function the same as the normal user profile page.

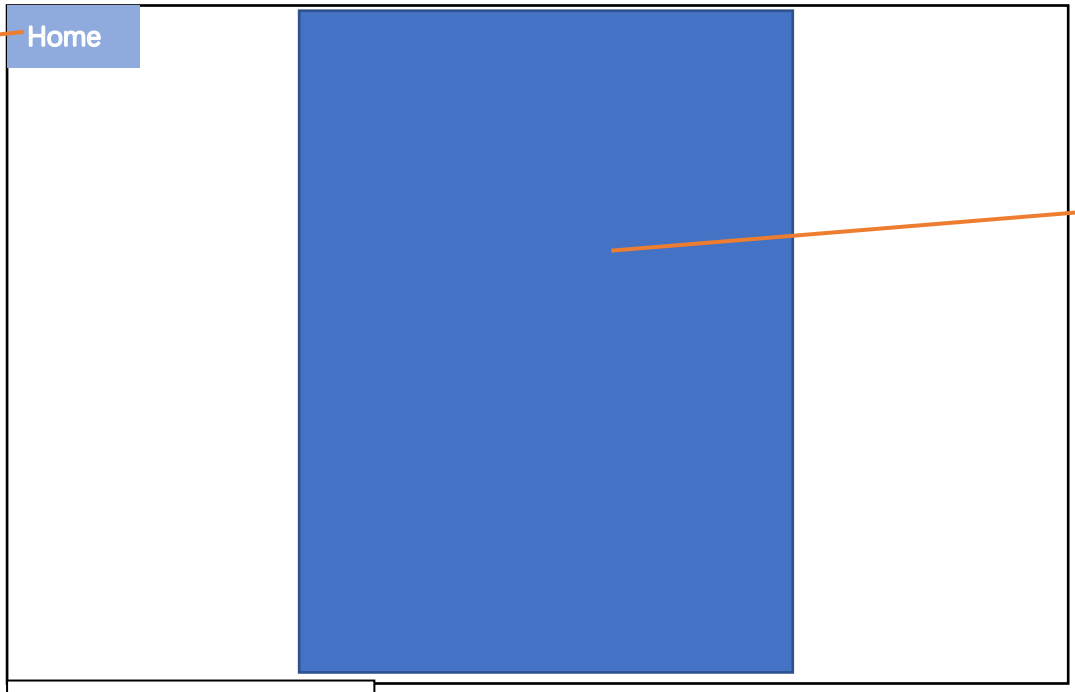
Takes the admin back to the Admin main page.



Registers a new admin with the given name, email address and password

Admin sign-up page

Takes the admin back to the Admin main page.



Fetch a list of data from the database that the admin can manage and then push back to the database

Admin management page